Honi the Circle-Maker once saw an old man planting a tree. “How long will it take to bear fruit?” Honi asked. “Seventy years,” the man answered. Honi then asked, “Do you think you will live to enjoy the tree’s fruit?” “Probably not,” the elder answered, “but when I came into this world I found a bountiful world. As others planted trees for me, so I now plant for my children and grandchildren.” (Talmud, Taanit 23A)
